Dear friends,

Most humbly I thank all of you for allowing me to have the “time of my life” these past 2 years serving as your state president. I have had the friendship and support of fantastic Board members and priceless members and friends. We just finished our Biennial Convention, and WOW, was it fun! Thank you so much for the gift of a musical clock – the notes will always remind me of the stories told these past two years.

Time, stories, and vision are three words that were key during this administration, with “Take Time to...Remember, Reflect and Renew” the theme. I started this term of office with excitement, enthusiasm, nerves, trepidation and many other states of mind. I had a vision for what I wanted to accomplish and only hoped that some of it would come to fruition.

To help in our communication efforts, we ramped up the website, improved the newsletter and began the process of delivering it electronically, all to keep members up to date on events and news. Another vision was to build on our past but re-excite members about what the state has to offer to club members. My goal was to make our state meetings informative, a time of celebration, and most of all, FUN. We also needed to find ways to stem the tide of money going out of our financial accounts...we have made some cuts in several different places, which are never easy to do, but we are making progress.

Another vision and passion was to give the Montana Talking Book Library $10,000 to update their recording system. We did it and then some! We raised $17,000 and heard from Christie Briggs that their patronage was up 29% in the past 2 years. Together we all made a difference in the lives of those who have vision and/or physical disabilities and are unable to use standard printed materials. Not only did we raise funds, but we spread the word about this service...mission accomplished!

Our GFWC of Montana organization is not perfect, but it has improved. I have learned that being perfect is impossible, but striving for excellence is a goal. My vision for my presidency has surpassed even what I thought possible. I would not trade these two years for the world...it was and is a gift...I am full of gratitude, excitement and hope as I near the end of this term. Don't be afraid to use whatever time, whatever circumstance, whatever moment you are given to find your inspiration. Visions are everywhere, visions come from everyone, and you will find one that will turn into a passion, even if you are not looking for it.

One more quote about time....“Don't count every hour in the day, make every hour in the day count.” The future is ahead of us, it is ours for the taking. Martin Luther King said, “If you can't fly, then run; if you can't run, then walk; if you can't walk, then crawl; but whatever you do, you have to keep moving forward.” Henry Ford said, “If everyone is moving forward together, then success takes care of itself”... We just need to keep moving! If we can do this as individuals and as volunteers in GFWC, success will take care of itself. As we move from this administration to the upcoming one with Joyce Rogers at the helm, together we will continue to make a difference.

With love, Nancy

Beautiful and delicious cheesecakes were served at a reception honoring the new GFWC of Montana Officers following closing of the installation.

All GFWC of Montana officers, from State President to District Officers, were privileged to become installed by International President Mary Ellen Laister.

Montana Women Did Big Things in 2012-2014!

Communications and Public Relations Report

Gayle Carter

GFWC Billings Junior Woman's Club was a contest winner of the Communications/PR International Award, receiving $50 from GFWC International. This club participated in a Holiday Parade that emphasized the importance of reading. Members passed out books to the spectators of the parade. They also joined many businesses to provide Pediatric Activity Bags at the local hospital. Activity bags are prepared and delivered to Billings Clinic each month for the pediatric patients in the hospital.

Some other ways GFWC of Montana clubs do public relations: use emails to announce meetings, upcoming events, club news and news from International; announce events including meetings in local newspapers. Clubs have logos, clothing with logos, handouts, stationery, brochures, posters, calling committees, newsletters, electronic newsletters, websites and many are now on Facebook.

GFWC Plains Woman's Club displays their club banner at the Plains Day parade, bingo booth at the county fair, Montana Rep Performances, and a new fundraising project called "flocking." Members place a herd of plastic flamingos on lawns under cover of darkness with a sign that says, "You've been flocked by Plains Woman's Club."

GFWC Laurel Federated Woman's Club members are visible at five community bazaars selling knives and books. This year members made a "Brand Board" to take to the bazaars to advertise the club's activities.

Ronan Woman's Club created a float for the "Pioneer Days Parade." The club labeled 350 bottles of water with their club name and an invitation to come to an ice cream social. Young boys and club members passed the cold water to the spectators along the parade route.

Home Life Community Service Project

Sandi Conrady

A brief highlight of Community Service projects: During the holidays gifts of food to those in need, cookies to charities, some to the Red Cross. May brings flowers, and some are potted and given to shut-ins. One club manned a workers' break room at a wrestling tournament and another baked desserts and manned a booth at a fund raiser for a group helping families. One project that I am especially fond of is the Easter egg hunt in the local cemetery since it is the only place with grass.

There were several programs presented to clubwomen about health issues. There are too many others (104) to include in this report; however, they all extended a helping hand to communities and those in need within those communities. Those communities are better for having such a caring group of women, the GFWC of Montana Woman's Clubs, in their midst. Thank you. . . Thanks. . . Gracias and Merci Beaucoup. And now I have one presentation to make and that is the Montana's Creativity Award Club Program – to GFWC Helena for their Placer Pantry. This unique store is free and fills a gap that food share can't fill with providing personal care items not offered elsewhere.

Short Story and Poetry Contest Winners

Representatives of the three clubs who entered stories and poems in this year's contest pose with Chairperson Mary Lou Hermes as they receive awards for the children from their home towns.

GFWC Plains Woman's Club's Sandi Lane took home two first prizes and one second in poetry, and two second prizes in short stories.

GFWC of Bridger's representative, Shirley Weisgerber, was presented with a first and two seconds in poetry, and two firsts in short stories.

Fort Benton Contest Chair Patty Paulsen took home a first and a second in poetry, two firsts and two seconds in short stories.

The GFWC writing contests are big celebrative events in the three schools where they are held. Watch a future issue of Montana Woman for descriptions of how they have engendered enthusiasm for writing in each location.

See How They Served!

Community Improvement Program Award

Diane Colpo

Two clubs entered Community Improvement Program Projects for the 2012-2014 administrative years. Those clubs were Big Timber Woman's Club and Fort Benton Woman's Club. Big Timber designed and financed a large Welcome Sign for the west end of their town and then landscaped it with native plants and a dry river bed made up of rock with recycled, tumbled blue and green glass to look like water flowing. Fort Benton spearheaded a recycling program for their community that has grown into a massive production. By the end of 2013 they estimated that they had collected a total of 60,000 pounds of recyclable materials.

I had three very competent judges who spent several hours reading every page of each scrapbook. They were very professional and followed the project essentials outlined in the club manual.

First place winner is GFWC Big Timber and their scrapbook has been sent on to International for competition there. They will receive a state award of $60. As 2nd place winner, GFWC Fort Benton will receive an award of $35.

International Outreach Community Service Program

Rae Proctor

My first observation is that International Outreach is a difficult program for Montana clubs in which to participate. It's not that we don't care about the world. It's just that we are a rural state and the clubs in our small cities and towns depend on us to provide them with all the assistance we can give them. Our club budgets just don't cover all of the opportunities GFWC provides.

That being said, we had a total of 10 clubs reporting projects and programs for this administration. There were 29 projects with $2,043 donated and $1,510 in kind donations. The projects included a luncheon for international students, support of a student in Ecuador, assisting a member on a dental outreach trip to Brazil, donations to CARE and Doctors Without Borders, observances of World Hunger Day, and donations to several local organizations that supported projects in other countries. Some clubs reported on club programs that were given by local folks that had traveled abroad to interesting places.

International Outreach Partnerships

There were 7 projects reported for this outreach by 3 clubs, with donations totaling $2,961. The projects were donations made to Heifer International, UNICEF, Operation Smile and Shot@Life.

GFWC Billings Junior Woman's Club was very generous in its support of our International Outreach and Partnerships. It continued to support some programs that were partnerships for part of this administration and then were discontinued as partners. That proves that partnerships are a good beginning.

I urge all clubs to take a look at some of the opportunities that are available Internationally and try to include at least one project or program in your new budget.

Beginning with the first issue of the 2014-2016 administration, the Montana Woman magazine will be sent electronically to all members – there will be no printed copies sent via the post office. After several years of discussion regarding our exorbitant overspending to produce the magazines, it needs to be implemented.

Please be sure to update or provide your email addresses when your dues are collected by your club treasurer. These addresses will not be shared with anyone other than for use in our GFWC of Montana organization.

Arts Community Service

Michele Furry

Clubs reporting – 13. Total # of projects – 45. Total dollars donated - $9605. Total Volunteer hours – 995

GFWC of Montana clubs were very active this year in bringing art education to our children. Six clubs participated in different ways.

Billings Junior Woman's Club helps to sponsor many children's art activities by their financial support, including scholarships to kids' art camps, bringing orchestras and workshops to the schools and helping to purchase an instrument for a child.

Big Timber and Plains Woman's clubs brought in Missoula Children's Theatre to their respective elementary schools this year. MCT brings a professional experience to the cast of children and the two tour actors hold workshops during the week. Besides donating the cost for the troupe, the clubs help with snacks for the children, publicity and ticket sales. Many club members are involved to make this project a success. Cost of the performance is $2200.

Three GFWC of Montana woman's clubs, Fort Benton, Bitterroot and Plains, hosted and provided refreshments for nine individual performing arts concerts in their towns this year.

Two clubs, Plains and Fort Benton, were instrumental in bringing Shakespeare in the Parks to their town this summer. Both clubs solicit donations from donors to pay for their performance, and donate dinner and housing for the actors.

Fundraising and Donations from art projects

The Culbertson Woman's Club sponsored a "Pie Social" that raised $600 for their county library. Madison Valley Woman's Club has eleven members who belong to the quilt guild. They are busy all year making and donating quilts to many worthy causes, including Madison Valley Medical Center Emergency room, the Food Bank, military personnel and local auctions.

This in a nutshell is just a small sampling of the fine volunteer work that ladies of our GFWC local clubs are doing to bring Art in the way of education and entertainment to their local communities

Photography Contest

Jamie Fuchs

Regretfully, I must let my fellow GFWC of Montana Club members know that the Volunteers in Action photography contest did not receive a single entry this year for GFWC of Montana. Club members – don't forget to take any opportunity to strike a pose while doing volunteer work! Then get those photos submitted to your State Photography Contest Chairman post-marked no later than March 10 of any given year. GFWC deadlines are May 15th of each year currently and are unlikely to change in the near future.

Submissions for the World in Pictures contests must come to the chairman without mats, 8 x 10 inches in size, must be mounted on a rigid 8 x 10 mount board and overall thickness may not exceed 3/8 inch. Club members must also include a GFWC Creative Arts Waiver.

Please see the GFWC Club Manual, which is available on the Internet from GFWC.org, or from your Club President for additional information.

Photographs sent to GFWC for further judging will be announced in an upcoming edition of the Montana Woman.

Fundraising and Development

Adina Fox

The GFWC Montana Clubs do an outstanding job in Fundraising and Development for their communities. The projects are unique for each club that meet their community's needs and provide the best benefit for the club's fundraising efforts.

Some fundraising projects include: GFWC Madison Valley Woman's Club's "Nearly New Shoppe and Vintage Attic," for those who love to find a great bargain; GFWC Miles City Woman's Club's "Home Tour," a way that people can learn more about the Miles City Heritage; GFWC Big Timber Woman's Club's annual "Christmas Bazaar," bringing out over 1000 people from their community; GFWC Helena Woman's Club's "Placer Pantry Bag Fundraiser," where the ladies use their quilting talents; GFWC Fort Benton Woman's Club's "Art on the Levee" and their "Pie Contest and Auction" (have you ever paid over $500 for a pie?) GFWC Plains Woman's Club's "Sanders County Fair Bingo Booth," for those who love to play Bingo and to win prizes; and the GFWC Ronan Woman's Club's "Annual Flea Market and Craft Show," with vendors, lunch, silent auctions, raffle tickets and other creative ways to raise money which can make for some interesting shenanigans.

In Montana 17 clubs reported 52 projects that enlisted 21,747 volunteer hours to raise $23,693 in 2013.

Juniors' Special Project: Advocates for Children

Cathy McCormick

For the past two calendar years, your clubs have reported 62 projects, 738 volunteer hours, $17,660.65 donated and $2,528 in-kind donations. These figures are remarkable, and they indicate a true concern as well as actions for improving all aspects of children's lives around the world.

Two clubs excelled in projects and in creativity. They are GFWC Billings Junior Women's Club and the GFWC Laurel Federated Woman's Club. Both of these clubs have impressive and ongoing Advocates for Children projects.

The GWC Laurel Federated Club works annually to provide family-oriented activities centered around Easter. On March 27 an Easter Egg Hunt for pre-school children was paid for by the Laurel Federated Woman's Club. The treasurer purchased the candy from club funds. One member and a booster member decorated 60 white sacks as rabbits for the children. Two members put grass and loose candy in the sack so each child would get some candy. Members donated plastic eggs which are filled with candy. The plastic eggs are hidden outside in the grass, on the ground and on window ledges for the children to find.

Ninety-two people attended GFWC Laurel Federated Woman's Club's annual play for pre-school children, home school children, parents and grandparents at the Laurel Library, an annual event the Wednesday before Easter. Volunteer hours totaled 18, including rehearsals and preparation of stage props.

The GFWC Billings Junior Woman's Club has an Advocates for Children Committee. They have supported the Family Tree Center for many years. The most successful project is the Festival of Trees in December of each year. They decorate a tree for auction, and the proceeds all go to fund The Family Tree Center. All club members were involved with this project, which was headed by a 15 member committee. At the November club meeting an activity was held after the meeting to secure the preliminary wiring to anything attached to the tree. The tree skirt was handmade by a member and covered with large "hungry caterpillars." This is a juried event with only 40 trees accepted in the auction. Their tree was covered with 30 Eric Carle books tied with large red bows and called "The World of Eric Carle." It was purchased by Phillips 66 for $1600 and donated to Orchard Elementary School. For three days the trees are on display to thousands in the community for an entrance fee. On Monday following the festival, the trees are delivered to the purchaser or to the business for whom it was purchased.

The following year the theme was "Clifford, the Big Red Dog." They had Clifford books, dog bones and stuffed characters from the stories. Beside the tree stood the cutest doghouse ready for someone's new puppy. Five hundred dollars was used to provide the tree, books, registration, decorations and a dog house. The tree brought in $1700 to support parent classes at FTC. It is clear that the creativity of this tree, its decorations and the dog house brought in the large amount of money to be donated to the center.

Leadership

Jamie Fuchs

GFWC of Montana and GFWC are lucky to have the many amazing and caring members who work tirelessly to promote GFWC and its programs through volunteerism. You are greatly appreciated.

Your statistical data will be compiled with that of other states and can be used for grants and to acknowledge the amount of volunteer work done by all members. I would like to point out, though, that the statistics are not the most important aspect of reporting. The most important aspects of volunteerism and this organization are the people and their stories. When submitting your reports and writing narratives, consider the story behind the service; ask your members why they do this service, ask members why they are willing to give so generously of the funds they have raised for this cause and find a story to tell. Tell the state chairman what was important about this project and worthwhile. Be creative, tell a story and have fun while you are generating your reports.

Ladies, please take this to heart and I challenge each of you to work with your club leadership and generate fantastic, inspiring narratives for your statistics and make them come to life!

GFWC Forsyth Woman's Club celebrates their 100th Anniversary

The GFWC Forsyth Woman's Club celebrated its 100th Anniversary on Saturday, April 5th. An Open House was held in the basement of the Rosebud County Library from 2 to 5 pm. with cake and punch served. Several GFWC of Montana members from around the state were excited to share in the fun. Mariellen Lee gave a short history of the club's many accomplishments and a cast of four Forsyth members depicted the beginnings of the club 100 years ago.

The Forsyth Woman's Club started the first library in Forsyth when women brought their own books for others to read. They were also instrumental in starting the groundwork for Marcyes Park, landscaping around the hospital when it was built, they had nameplates made for all the different kinds of trees in Pioneer Park, and this year they will landscape around the new clinic.

The women took on the Forsyth cemetery project, "Listing who is buried there, and where." The Rosebud County Commissioners then had a board made with glass on it covering the listings for all to read and find their loved ones. The Forsyth Woman's Club was also instrumental in hiring artist Bob Watts to paint the log cabin mural on the north side of the Independent Press building.
